Miniature lumber pond

This replica was built leaving a water-rich environment, recreating the water scenery once visible at the lumber pond. The water surface area is approximately 1,600 m².

The rocks used on the banks of the miniature lumber pond were once weights. Logs were sunk with those to preserve the wood for long periods of time.

Stream and fields

An approximately 300-meter stream built from rock runs through the park. Water flows through that all during summer vacation, and a splashing pond is formed in the upstream area for children to play in.

The central field is defined by its point-ed-cap clock tower. Playground equipment such as an obstacle course is featured in the adventure field. You can also enjoy cherry blossoms during spring and ginkgo during autumn at the semicircular grass field.
